CHAPTER II

INTRODUCTION

Background of the study

Baked goods encompass a wide variety of treats, from crispy cookies and flaky pastries to moist cakes and hearty breads. The art of baking involves combining precise ingredients, techniques, and the magic of the oven to create delightful textures and flavors. Baking offers a versatile canvas to create a myriad of delicacies. From pies, brownies, cookies and a lot more delicate pastries, the possibilities are endless in baking.

Pie is defined as a baked food in a pastry-lined pan or dish that consist of a filling, can be, fruit, meat, pudding, or other filling, and it often also has a pastry crust on top. Pies are being named the literal food for thought, proven to stimulate senses and enhance feel-good chemicals in the brain including Serotonin, Dopamine, Endorphins and Oxytocin. The word was first recorded in 1275-1325 and comes from Middle English.

Additionally, Brownie is a chocolate baked confection. Brownies come in a variety of forms and may be either fudgy or cakey, depending on their density. Brownies often, but not always, have a glossy “skin” on their upper crust. Brownies are a great source of protein and fiber, which helps you feel full longer. Brownie was developed in the United States at the end of the 19th century and popularized there during the first half of the 20th century.

On the other hand, a cookie (American English) or biscuit (British English) is a baked snack or dessert that is typically small, flat, and sweet. It usually contains flour, sugar, egg, and some type of oil, fat, or butter. Cookies can help boost your energy because it contains whole grain flour, which provides a nutritious source of protein, vitamins, fiber, and minerals that help produce a stable metabolism. Cookie was first introduced in early 7th Century A.D. Persia which is now Iran.

Furthermore, the jackfruit or Langka is the fruit of jack tree Artocarpus Heterophyllus, a species of tree in the fig, mulberry, and breadfruit family. The jackfruit is the largest tree fruit, reaching as much as 55 kg in weight, 90 cm in length, and 50 cm in diameter. Jackfruit offers several key nutrients, including fiber, protein, vitamin C, B vitamins, and potassium. Those nutrients can help you manage your weight and blood sugar, promote healthy skin, and keep your heart healthy.

A combination of jackfruit and baked goods can be a perfect unique twist, providing a subtly sweet and tropical flavor. In pies, jackfruit can contribute a juicy and slightly chewy texture, blending well with other fruits or spices. In brownies, it can add a natural sweetness and a touch of exotic flair. When incorporated into cookies, jackfruit bits can bring a delightful surprise, offering an interesting contrast to traditional cookie ingredients. Experimenting with jackfruit in baked treats can result in a creative fusion of flavors, adding a refreshing and innovative element in desserts.

In the domain of pies, a surge in demand is evident during the holiday season, particularly for traditional fruit pies around Thanksgiving and Christmas. Timeless favorites such as apple, pumpkin, and cherry continue to captivate consumers. Notably, there is a growing interest in distinctive pie flavors and innovative crust options, catering to those who seek novel and exciting culinary experiences.

Brownies continue to enjoy widespread popularity as a cherished baked good, prized for their rich and fudgy texture. Variations like salted caramel brownies, cheesecake brownies, and gluten-free options have witnessed a notable increase in popularity. Moreover, a burgeoning demand for healthier brownie alternatives, incorporating ingredients such as black beans or sweet potatoes, reflects a broader societal shift towards mindful consumption.

Several market factors underpin these trends. Health and wellness considerations have significantly impacted product formulations, with consumers expressing preferences for healthier ingredients like whole grains and natural sweeteners. The convenience factor remains pivotal, with pre- packaged and on-the-go formats catering to the demands of busy lifestyles.

The premiumization of products is evident, as consumers display a willingness to pay more for high-quality, artisanal, or gourmet offerings. Online

Promotion and Advertisement

The agents of this study have in mind a number of strategies to market our product within and outside its direct location–the Western Mindanao State University Campuses A and B. The primary form of marketing is through various social media platforms such as Facebook, Instagram, and Tiktok, where relevant information about the business such as promos and discounts, product quality, and contact information will be provided. Further, a week prior to the official opening of the business, pamphlets will be given to the students throughout the campus indicating an invitation to the business location, and other advertising information. Once the business has been introduced to the market, the primary strategy that the team will utilize is the utilization of social media platforms and through oral referral. Monthly giveaways of baked products will also be practiced to establish customer relations among the owners and the target market.
